Film Vocabulary-Part I

In a celebrity-obsessed world, actors are as famous as politicians (maybe even more so!) We like to see our favourite actors playing a character–even a minor character–in films, whether these are in lead roles (=main roles), or supporting roles (not main roles). Every year, the Oscars are awarded to talent within the film fraternity. We like reading the film credits, firstly to see who's in the cast (everyone who acted in the film) and if there's a special appearance by a famous actor or a cameo of the director who is only in the film for a couple of minutes.
