

CHANGING A JOB

Vocabulary

Agonize: to spend a lot of time trying to make a decision.

Downsize: to make a company or organization smaller by reducing the number of people working for it.

Stagnant: not growing or developing.

myth: a traditional story, especially one concerning the early history of a people or explaining some natural or social phenomenon.

folk: people, especially those of a particular group or type.

Introduction

To Stay or To Leave Your Job? Why you should stay in your job, why you should leave your job? “This decision is really hard”. “Which is the best decision now?”. The only person who can make this decision for ourselves is we ourselves.

This is sad as so many of us are amazingly talented professionals and are wondering, worrying, stressing about whether we should stay, or leave our job and move on.

We keep wondering, worrying, stressing—and never make a decision. We need some honest advice, fresh thinking, and perhaps a little kick in the patootie to get into action. So if you are one of the many today agonizing over this decision, you should consider your reasons to change your job and opt for the right decision.