Interview with a Famous Actor

In this dialogue you will practice speaking about daily routines, as well as current activities. Notice that the present simple is used to speak about daily routines, and the present continuous is used to speak about what is happening around the current moment in time. Practice the dialogue with your partner and then interview each other focusing on changing between a discussion of daily routines and what you are currently working on.

Whether you are looking for an acting position doing commercials, theatre, or movie work, there will come a point in your search where you find yourself about to enter an interview. The good news is that you don't have to rehearse your part. The bad? Many actors still do.
